Photoshop is not a word processor. Many people say that Photoshop is not a word processor, but it's an image editor. When you use word processors like Microsoft Word or Microsoft Excel, you can actually save a file called "Document.doc" or "Spreadsheet.xls," which identifies it as a word processing document. However, Photoshop doesn't save images. You create a layer or a series of layers, which are commonly referred to as images, and then you can alter those layers or, if you already have layers, edit them. In fact, the popular designation "Image Processor" might be better than "image editor." Adobe Photoshop — All You Need to Know

Category:Populated places in the Municipality of Brinje to the pledge each debtor must promise upon the execution of the instrument: "I will pay the full amount of my debt as agreed." Thus, the Bankruptcy Court properly calculated the total of the unsecured portion of the debt owed by each debtor (as of the filing of the bankruptcy petition) to be $100,000. 21 The Trustee argues that sec. 506(b) does not apply to unsecured debt, and that therefore the bankruptcy court erroneously awarded a second priority payment to each of the unsecured creditors. This argument is without merit. The plain language of section 506(b) speaks only to secured debt, and makes no reference to unsecured debt. However, the Trustee argues that allowing such a claim would be contrary to the purposes of Chapter 13, and would be detrimental to the bankruptcy process. In support of this claim, the Trustee argues that unsecured creditors would receive a windfall in the form of payment at the expense of more senior creditors, that secured creditors would bear the burden of paying a double claim, and that secured creditors would effectively share the risk of possible subsequent decline in property value. However, because this case is distinguishable from the other Chapter 13 cases in which we have addressed the issue, we need not decide the validity of the Trustee's conclusions.
