Q: Why does my Linux distro go crazy with IRQ messages? I noticed a bunch of irq messages in my dmesg (Ubuntu), and I don't know what they mean. I have a modified kernel for a platform, and I'm trying to find a way to get rid of them. I have a TMS320C64X (32-bit) that I'm trying to work with. I have a file open, a word length of 16, and only eight DMA channels. In normal operation, the IRQ messages are: [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: Configuration register is 0x0000 [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x0006 [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x0028 [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x0066 [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x00a0 [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x012c [0.000000] TMS320C64x00: System parameters reg 0x018c [0.000000]
