A sleek, low-profile stand that makes it easy to rest and workThe present invention relates to a heat pump system, especially but not exclusively for use as a central heating or cooling system, which is capable of operating in a mode of heat pump operation and a mode of electric heating operation. Such systems can be arranged to accommodate equipment, such as electrical resistors and thermostat controls, which are suitable for use with an electric heating system, but in which, when heated by an air-to-air heat pump, can be arranged to be plumbed into the venting system of the heat pump to provide cold air discharge for heating purposes and to act as a thermostat so as to maintain desired temperature in the home or office. Whilst such systems are effective they are not particularly economical in that it is not economical to operate the heat pump system during the period that the equipment is being heated by an electric heater, and hence 3e33713323
