it comes to my face and mustache. I have plenty of time to grow a beard, but I don't when it comes to full-blown facial hair. Besides, my beard is a work in progress, and I can't afford to mess it up on someone else's watch, as they say. In the interim, I've got a closely trimmed, neat beard. I'm happy with it, really. After all, it's not like I'm looking to make a statement. Then there's my neck. Growing a beard there is a commitment. A serious commitment. I'm a self-proclaimed expert in the field and normally don't wax my own praises, but I'm here to tell you: if you're thinking about going in and growing a beard, don't expect it to look good in a year
