File sharing for multiple users: Autodesk released the first version of Autodesk Vault in 2011. The idea behind this service is to allow users to work simultaneously on drawings. Once a drawing is released, it is "vaulted", meaning it is locked for sharing. When any user wants to work on a drawing, they log in to Autodesk Vault and can see all drawings. There are three main advantages of this service: It does not affect the original drawing, so the developer can continue to work on it as if nothing had happened. The original drawing is not visible for other users, so no one can see it. The developer is no longer the only person who can make changes to the drawing.
