? will open the user specified OPML file in Internet Explorer. ? Downloading: ? Downloads the enclosures from the feeds you have added. This may take some time. The program will give you a progress bar. ? Downloading with Progressbar: ? Enclosure Extractor will display a progress bar while scanning and downloading enclosures from the given feeds. If you use a proxy server, Enclosure Extractor will download enclosures in batch mode. ? Downloading with Multiple Progressbars: ? If you want to download several files, you can use multiple progressbars (a single progress bar is no longer supported). You may set the percentage of the total download to be done for each progress bar. This will start as soon as you set a percentage (0 = no limit). If the current percentage is the same for all the progress bars, the total percentage will be reached. You may cancel a downloaded file by pressing ESC. ? Multiple Cleanups: ? By setting a name for each enclosure file, you may have them all deleted at once. ? Canceling a task: ? Enclosure Extractor can be easily cancelled by pressing CTRL + ESC in the program window. ? Reset: ? Removes the scanlist and all files (including TEMP files). This is a useful feature if the scanlist becomes corrupted. Press Reset and add the feeds again. If your scanlist becomes corrupted, you may need to delete the scanlist and recreate it. ? Enclosure Extractor - Beta version ? As of Feburary 2012 this latest release version has a new and improved UI. ? Improved UI: ? The UI has been completely redesigned. The UI has been moved to the top of the program window. There are two tabs to the right. One for the enclosures you've downloaded (and a list of the deleted files), the other for configurable settings. ? Improved Searching: ? Searching for enclosures has been improved. ? Refreshing:
