The series revolves around the sport of association football, and has become the world's best-selling sports game. The gameplay is based around a 3D engine and is realistic with attention to small details such as the movements of the players' legs and feet. This allows the game to achieve a higher level of player interaction and realism by portraying the player movement through global positioning data (GPD) and numerous other techniques. Depending on the game, the commentary team may also have different accents for different countries. Gameplay modes Most games in the FIFA series feature an Opening Ceremony mode to introduce the gameplay mode and team/club specific stadiums. The soccer gameplay in FIFA is often compared to NBA Street Hoops and is a good example of the evolution of soccer gameplay. The gameplay of FIFA is more focused on passing than shooting, like in real-world football. Passing is done using the buttons C and ZR while dribbling is done with X and C. The ball cannot be controlled with L and R like in NBA 2K series. A.I. The game's A.I. is represented through "Teammate A.I.", "Player A.I." and "Kick A.I.".
