But the reasons for and the extent of the loss of funds has yet to be fully revealed. The agency began as a boarding home for horses, but increasingly it also became a welfare-based animal shelter in the early 1980s. Over the years it has struggled to balance animal welfare with finances. In May 2013, the government announced a $10 million donation to be spent on expanding the RSPCA's operations. At the time, the RSPCA's administrator Gregory Wilkins said it would enable the organisation to provide more care and shelter to animals. But based on an article
