• The platform hosts user-created games of multiple genres coded in the programming language Lua. Users create or purchase a box, which serves as their inventory or toolbox, in order to build, purchase, and customize various game objects. Through use of a block-based construction toolkit, users can create and shape different areas of terrain and buildings. The creation and customization process is facilitated by the game's UI, which includes such tools as an inventory screen and property screens. The game also includes a robust library of pre-fabricated items, including weapons and accessories. Users are able to sell and buy items in-game. • Robux serves as a virtual currency to purchase in-game resources, construct new parts for existing objects, and obtain new skins for user-created games. Each game has a store that displays a currency display for users to purchase in-game items with real money. The Robux earned through gameplay may also be used to purchase in-game items within the Roblox marketplace. Users may also earn Robux by inviting friends to the platform. • Certain content such as cosmetics, armor, weapons, and accessories may be bought using either Robux or real-world money. According to Roblox, the number of items available using Robux is not significantly larger than those available using real-world money. The company has also implemented a Roblox Salaries Pay feature, which allows users to set the wages of their character's avatar. • Roblox offers user-created games in a variety of genres, including action role-playing, sports, mobile, fashion, and platformer. Users can create and publish their games with little to no effort. The platform allows users to make money from their games through the use of advertising and occasional microtransactions. • Roblox devices are also available for purchase. These allow users to play games from their mobile devices, such as smartphones or tablets. Guide To Use Roblox Account • Each user has a profile, which is displayed after they have registered with the Roblox platform. A game's creators are also displayed under the create tab. • The Platform allows users to set a time of day that their character will be available for play, schedule their character to idle, and set the maximum playtime and idle times for each character. • To contact a player in a game, the player should select the contact button on their profile page. • When a game is played, the screen is
