if you're having trouble with your audioease installation, you can download the latest version of audioease from our website: > audioease speakerphone standalone plugin 1.03 one thing to keep in mind when using audioease is that it will only work with the full, retail version of speakerphone. if you're interested in using a trial version, you can download the stand-alone plug-in. this audioease stand-alone version of speakerphone allows users to create their own irs from their own library of samples. this version of speakerphone doesn't have the additional effects and convolution engine, so it's not as versatile as the full version. speakerphone 2, powered by altiverb, combines a wealth of effects including a convolution engine that uses actual samples of hundreds of original speakers, a radio receiver tuning dial, record player scratch and static generator, gsm cell phone data compression, distortion, tremolo, delay, a full blown convolution reverb, and a library of samples to combine into entire environments. the plugin's new options window gives access to all the plug-in's settings, including the ability to select from a variety of sample sources and to tweak the internal effects and convolution parameters. all of this for just $299? not bad, especially given that these days many people seem to be using daws without speaker packs. (see the download for the demo version of audioease speakerphone.) and since the time-consuming process of making your own speakerphones from scratch is eliminated with this plug-in, you should soon start seeing more people putting speakerphones in their daws.

we've also included a number of effects, the most obvious of which is the user-interactive eq, and you can also pan and cut the source and the result. you can also adjust the phase of the stereo image and add harmonics and saturation. of course, you can also use speakerphones own synthesizers, and these can be used as a complete rack-mounted system as well. effects include eq, panning, multi-band saturation, and harmonics. no we did not forget about compression and gain. rather than supply you with a predefined set of presets, we've created twenty-four new ones, six of which are completely new, and the other eighteen are built on the back of the originals and offer a new take on the audio effect. these eighteen presets are very similar to the original ones, but we've added new synth sounds, sounds from other plugins, and even sounds from some new audio effects. in fact, we even took the effect and ran it through a pair of desktop processors, so you can hear the difference between the original one and our version. eighteen presets are available, and they range from a warm and soothing reverb, to a more saturated and punchy one, and they also include a room echo, a delay, a shimmer, some new synthesizers, and even some new sampling effects. we have created and included a set of custom presets for you to use as a template, and these are the most extensive that we've ever offered in a single plugin. you have access to a total of seventy-two presets, which make it easy to create your own set of mixes quickly and easily. although the presets are quite large, you can easily create your own custom mixes from scratch. with so many different effects and synth sounds to experiment with, and a set of custom presets to use as a template, you can quickly and easily create your own unique effects using speakerphone. the presets include several of the basic effects, including four different reverb presets, a room reverb, a stereo image reverb, a dry/wet reverb, a delay, a shaker, a stereo delay, a tremolo, and a distortion, and you can also use these with various stereo and mono effects such as equalizers, panning, phase, phase shifter, and so on. in addition to the presets, we've also included eighty-eight wav files that you can use to create your own custom mixes, and these are also included in the package. these wav files contain various sounds from all of the different plugins that are included with speakerphone, and they range from free samples, to custom made ones, and even a few old ones that we've found in various old audio effects. you can also create your own custom presets using any of the wav files included in the package, or you can use them to create a template that you can then use to create your own custom presets. in addition to the preset and wav files, speakerphone includes a number of presets and sound fx that can be used as a template to create your own custom preset and effect mixes. this is the most comprehensive set of templates that we've ever offered in a single plugin, and we're sure that you'll find it useful. 5ec8ef588b
