I know $D_x f(x,y) = (0, -2)$ But I am not sure what to do when it comes to a second variable. A: You may recall that the partial derivative is a linear operator, i.e. when we have a function g of several variables, $g(x,y,z)$, the partial derivative with respect to the first variable of $g(x,y,z)$ will be the same as $g(x,y,z)$ where x is substituted for the first variable x_i in the subscript of g . In other words, $\frac{\partial}{\partial x_i} (g(x,y,z)) = g(x,y,z)|_{x_i} = g(x,y,z)$ in your case, $f(x,y) = g(x,y,z)$ with $g(x,y,z) = (x+2y, -2x+y)$ therefore $\frac{\partial}{\partial x} f(x,y) = (0, 1)$, $\frac{\partial}{\partial y} f(x,y) = (-2, 0)$ Q: Can I create a .NET Core API without AddXmlSerializerFormat()? I'm trying to run my ASP.NET Core 2.1 Web API project with docker. While we're not using XML serialization, we are using a format that requires the AddXmlSerializerFormat() extension method. Unfortunately, that method is required to build the docker image, and we can't have those added into the docker image. Is there a way to build the docker image without AddXmlSerializerFormat()? A: If you have created a class that needs the Add

Password Sniffer Console is a comprehensive piece of software whose main purpose resides in assisting you with the detection and capture of access credentials that pass through your LAN, be they for email accounts, web sites or FTP servers. Advanced CMD knowledge required The application does not have a GUI per se, and can only be run from CMD, meaning that you need to have at least some prior experience in working in command line. While the program offers some help documentation on how to best benefit from what it can, many people will probably think twice before using Password Sniffer Console, precisely because of the absence of a user interface. Recover passwords for your various accounts from network traffic The utility supports several different protocols, namely HTTP, FTP, POP3, IMAP and SMTP, being able to cover a large array of passwords that are used in the network, with just a few swift keystrokes. With the help of Password Sniffer Console, you can easily retrieve lost or forgotten access credentials for your email account, your favorite websites or your FTP servers, and can also serve penetration testers in their daily tasks. Once launched, it requires you to indicate the index of network devices. After selecting it, Password Sniffer Console will automatically begin retrieving passwords and display them as captured from the passing traffic, listing them in a queue. If you're buying a new car, you want to know a few things before you decide. First, what kind of car do you want, and is that what you can afford? Then, which models are most reliable? And after you answer those questions, there's an important final step: Do you need car insurance? Due to the fact that there are tens of thousands of different cars on the road, it's almost impossible for you to know which car to buy. Since you can't actually test a car in your driveway before you buy it, you'll need to rely on online reviews, research and the recommendations from friends and family. Although you can visit a dealership, you'll have more luck visiting a local dealership if you are in the market for a used car. The condition of a used car may make it worth the extra money for an extra $300 or $400, or it may not be. The bottom line is, a dealer is going to take a higher markup on a used car than a new car, and that can be a lot more than the few hundred or a few thousand dollars it can save you. b7e8fdf5c8
